

Jonathon Kruger

Jonathon Kruger is the Chief Executive Officer of the Australian Dental Council (ADC), where he leads national efforts to uphold rigorous standards in dental practitioner accreditation and assessment. With over two decades of leadership experience in health policy, regulation, and international advocacy, Jonathon brings an international perspective to workforce development and professional standards.

Before joining the ADC in 2024, Jonathon served as CEO of World Physiotherapy in London, where he worked for eight years to strengthen global health systems, drive governance reform, develop the rehabilitation workforce, and foster strategic partnerships.

His earlier roles include General Manager Policy at the Australian and New Zealand College of Anaesthetists, Director Corporate Governance at Northern Health, and senior leadership positions at the Australian Physiotherapy Association.

Jonathon holds a Master of Public Health from Monash University, a Bachelor of Physiotherapy from La Trobe University, and a Graduate Diploma in Health and Medical Law from the University of Melbourne.

A dynamic and collaborative leader, Jonathon is committed to strengthening accreditation frameworks to ensure safe, effective, and culturally responsive care across Australia's health professions.
